A Life Transformed: Painting a Brighter Future

Mr. H. is typically a soft-spoken, mild-mannered person. But, ask him about his time at Joseph's Home and he becomes much more animated as he describes the care he received. "All the Joseph's Home staff, especially Ms. Jackson [Executive Director Georgette Jackson], have supported me all the time," explained Mr. H. "It relieved my mind knowing I could be somewhere safe, clean and secure. I am very appreciative."

After years of struggling with diabetes and congestive heart failure, plus undergoing dialysis due to kidney failure and being hospitalized regularly, Mr. H. was unable to work and eventually became homeless. He stayed at a homeless shelter for more than a month, but the shelter could not provide the specialized medical care he needed. He was referred to Joseph's Home and admitted in August 2011.

Joseph's Home provided Mr. H. with the medical attention he needed, ensuring he took his medications and received regular dialysis. He also received anger management counseling, life skills classes and nutrition education. When his car was repossessed due to an administrative problem with his payments, Joseph's Home social worker Rodney Dial helped him resolve the issue and get the vehicle back.

Being at Joseph's Home also allowed Mr. H. to try new things. Some of them—like attending his first Cavs basketball game thanks to a generous donor's contribution of tickets—were a big hit. The art program was a slightly different story. For his first and only masterpiece, he tried his hand at painting a picture of a pumpkin. Although he enjoyed the experience, the painting didn't turn out well. When asked about it, he laughed and said, "I can't paint a lick." But, he did receive a certificate for giving it his best shot. He said the encouragement from others was inspiring.

Mr. H. was hospitalized again in January to repair a detached retina in his eye. After four months away from Joseph's Home, he was re-admitted. Mr. H.'s health stabilized and he was approved for an apartment. He moved into his new home in late July, with a nurse visiting regularly to provide medical attention to keep his health stable. With the help of Joseph's Home, he can look forward to fewer days in the hospital and a longer, healthier life. ♦

A MESSAGE FROM JOSEPH'S HOME BOARD CHAIR

New Board Chair Kathy Heigle

The Joseph's Home Board of Directors elected new officers in May. Kathy Heigle, a native Clevelander who has been on the board since 2010, was chosen to be the new board chair. Heigle works for Victory Capital Management as a portfolio manager. She lives in Rocky River with husband David, 6-year old son Rees and 4-year old daughter Maggie. In her spare time, she enjoys bike riding, hiking and home renovation projects.

Recently I met the wife of a former Joseph's Home resident. She explained how her husband had tried many times to turn his life around, but everywhere he went for help fell short.

Only Joseph's Home was able to give him everything he needed to succeed. She attributed it to the coaches and their personal attention. She said they were able to show him all of the good he had inside. They empowered him to take hold of his life. Now this man is reconciled with the family that has always loved him.

I hear similar stories whenever I listen to the people connected to Joseph's Home. They remind me of what first led me to this organization...

When my office was located downtown, I often saw a man at the corner of Ontario and Rockwell, outside of the Old Stone Church. He didn't ask for money, but would smile and wish people passing a good day. Some people ignored him, but others offered him a good day back. Often he would greet passersby by name.

I was amazed. Here was a man who was obviously homeless, wishing people well.

Over the course of a year, I became friends with J.K. Jr. We talked each morning as he walked me from my parking lot to Key Tower. One day, he even bought me a cup of coffee.

J.K. Jr. taught me a lot about his life as a homeless man and the opportunities Cleveland offered him to better his life. Tuesdays and Thursdays he would shower at St. Malachi and twice a week he went to classes for computers and woodworking.

Hearing stories of places in Cleveland that didn't just offer food and shelter but opportunities to change lives made me want to do more.

Joseph's Home is just that type of place. We are not a pass-through facility like a rehabilitation center. We help homeless men heal their mind, body and soul in a home atmosphere. We do an initial assessment, then provide coaching, enrichment programs and continuing care tailored for each man's needs. We provide a pathway of escape from the revolving door of safety-net services.

One day J.K. Jr. told me he got a job and was moving into a group home. He was so proud. I was proud. Here was a homeless man who didn't complain about his situation, but instead accepted it and set out to change his life for the better.

That's why Joseph's Home is here, and that's why I'm pleased to serve...for men like J.K. Jr. who just need a little extra love, encouragement and help to heal.

J.K. Jr.—if you ever read this, know that I'll never forget you. Thank you for your inspirational example. Your hope, courage and determination are impacting more lives than you will ever know.

KATHY A. HEIGLE

VOLUNTEERS DEMONSTRATE CHARITY IN ACTION

The Church of St. Clarence in North Olmsted has an extremely active Charity In Action (C.I.A.) volunteer program. Parish members engage in a variety of weekly, monthly and annual service projects that benefit the needy in the Cleveland area and around the world.

A team of C.I.A. volunteers cooks a Saturday meal for the men of Joseph's Home each month. They also play an active role in the annual Joseph's Home Christmas celebration by providing gifts individually selected for each resident.

"The St. Clarence volunteers bring a real ray of sunshine into our building," said Joseph's Home Executive Director Georgette Jackson. "Their thoughtful acts of kindness and generosity promote profound spiritual, emotional and physical healing in the lives of our residents." ♦

INTERNSHIP PROGRAM PAYS DIVIDENDS FOR STUDENTS AND JOSEPH'S HOME

College interns from Cleveland State University are a welcome sight around Joseph's Home, where they supplement the work of professional staff and the loving labor of caring volunteers to benefit residents daily.

Internships are a vital part of the training for both undergraduate- and graduate-level social work students, explained Valerie Treisch-Chirdon, field education coordinator for the School of Social Work at Cleveland State. Treisch-Chirdon personally matches students with the agencies she thinks will fit best with their background, experience and interests.

At Joseph's Home, the faith-based mission and emphasis on meeting clients' physical and spiritual needs adds a special wrinkle for the interns. "It's a unique program, especially the holistic approach," she said.

Cleveland State interns at Joseph's Home this academic year are Marcus Redfern and Howard Winton. Combined, they are spending 40 hours per week at Joseph's Home until next April. They help the staff with paper work, answer phones, participate in group sessions and interact with residents.

Winton said his time at Joseph's Home so far has been "a very rewarding experience." He added, "I like to think I'm being of service to another human being."

Redfern agreed and added, "It's an organization that does excellent work, getting men back to health and back into society. I'm proud to be a Joseph's Home intern." ♦

SURPRISE PARTY LEADS TO A SURPRISE GIFT

When Joseph's Home supporter and retired firefighter Joseph Sweeney turned 75 in July, guests at his surprise party didn't bring him gifts—and he couldn't have been happier. Instead, they were asked to make donations to Joseph's Home. Nineteen guests donated a total of $895. Sweeney also had the opportunity to describe Joseph's Home and its mission to his guests. Since the party, people have continued to ask Sweeney about Joseph's Home.

Sweeney initially learned about Joseph's Home several years ago through a newspaper article with a request for donations of lampshades from Sr. Joan Gallagher, who was the executive director at the time. Sweeney recalled saying to himself, "Who in the world asks for donations of lampshades? I've got to meet this nun." He called her and has been involved ever since. Sweeney was a firefighter in Lyndhurst, Ohio, for 34 years, including 17 years as chief. He has six children, including two sons who are also firefighters. ♦

Mr. Butas, 2012

Mr. Butas graduated from Joseph's Home in September, only five months after surgery to correct a debilitating foot condition. Although occasional pain is expected to continue until a year or more after the surgery, his recovery is progressing rapidly. Mr. Butas lives independently within walking distance of Joseph's Home and is looking for full-time work. He has more than 20 years of experience as a computer numerically controlled machine programmer and hopes to find a position where he can use his knowledge of precision measuring tools.

NEW BEGINNINGS

UPDATES

Mr. Parks, 2011

Sometimes turnaround stories are better than success stories. After repeated relapses, the Joseph's Home team decided Mr. Parks needed to be in a residential drug treatment program. Thankfully, he embraced this change of plans. He continued to visit Joseph's Home during the course of his treatment and relied on his relationships with Joseph's Home staff for the support and encouragement he needed to get clean and stay clean. Today, he is 22 months sober and active in nursing home and prison ministry.

"I received quality care and genuine compassion from the staff of Joseph's Home."

—MR. PARKS

Mr. Scott, 2009

When Mr. Scott came to Joseph's Home with stage four colon cancer, one of his doctors told him he was "at death's door." His cancer now remains in remission. He lives independently in a downtown apartment and is engaged to be married next June.

"I'm getting a second chance at life. This program works."

"Joseph's Home is a good place to change your life. Here, you're in a safe place."

—MR. PATTERSON

Mr. Patterson, 2010

Mr. Patterson came to Joseph's Home after hip replacement surgery. A recovering addict who has been sober since New Year's Day 2008, he is now in his second year of school at Cuyahoga Community College, where he is studying to become an addiction counselor. Having been out of school for more than 30 years, Mr. Patterson reports that the algebra and biology classes are a challenge, but he is taking full advantage of the tutoring resources available to him. He has been gratified to find other, younger, students looking to him for help in class.
